NEWSPAPER CIRCULATIONS

In

Colorado Springs

And vicinity

THE Giles Directory Company have made a thorough canvass of this city and vicinity in order to ascertain the number and kind of newspapers taken by the people. This canvass was undertaken at the suggestion of a number of our patrons who found it impossible to decide as to the relative circulations of the different newspapers because of the conflicting reports given by each paper.

This canvass has been taken with as much care as possible, and although it is very probable that the canvassers did not secure the names of every person subscribing to newspapers, the chances are that the proportions of circulation as given below are substantially correct.

This canvass has extended over a period of nearly two months, and it is probably a fact that each paper has a larger circulation than is accorded by this canvass. The figures given below do not include street sales or sales by news-dealers. A canvass among the newsboys and news-dealers showed that the Rocky Mountain News had the largest street and news-stand sales, with the Evening Telegraph a close second; both of these papers selling more copies on the street and in news-stands than all of the other papers combined—with the exception of Sunday, when the Post, Republican and Gazette have their largest sales.

The following is the table of circulations:

PREFACE.

We take pleasure in extending our greeting to the people of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou.

In presenting this, our first annual City Directory of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou, we do so with pride, as we believe that for completeness, correctness and convenience of arrangement it is equal to the best furnished any city, and we are certain that in many respects it excels any publication of its kind ever issued here. We will publish this directory annually, and it will be our aim and ambition to serve the public in the future to a degree of satisfaction which will merit a continuance of the generous patronage and support accorded us for this issue. This book, we believe, more completely represents the healthy and rapid growth of the municipality than any other medium that reaches the average citizen, and while we do not claim that our efforts are directed solely towards doing the public a general service, yet we do insist that it would be extremely difficult to find a publication, conducted by private enterprise, where there is so much outlay and such careful and patient work given, with as modest expectations for financial returns, as will be found in the compilation of this publication.

The canvass just made has revealed many agreeable surprises. Everywhere, in every direction, handsome residences and business structures are being erected, and ground broken for hundreds of others. This, together with the fact that there are practically no vacant stores or houses, is the best possible proof of our rapid growth.

POPULATION.

There are 12,460 references in the alphabetical list of names for the City Directory of Colorado Springs. After deducting the names of corporations, firms, societies, churches, blocks, places of amusement, etc., which are 1,120, we have the names of 11,340 individuals, which, at the conservative ratio of two and one-half inhabitants for each name in the directory, shows the present population of Colorado Springs to be 28,350, an increase of 17,310 since 1890.

NEW FEATURES.

A reference to the contents will show that we have aimed to embrace all features of practical value to our patrons, and it is our purpose to keep the directory up to its present standard of excellence, and add any new features from time to time found necessary. We call special attention to the street and avenue guide, also to list of postoffices in Colorado.

A library of directories of the principal cities of the United States is being collected as rapidly as possible, and will be ready for the free use of our patrons in a few weeks.
